

Honorary Doctorate

Andy Borland, Doctor of Commerce

Andy Borland is Managing Director of Scales Corporation, a leading New Zealand agribusiness company.

Scales Corporation is a large and diverse company with activities in horticulture (principally apples), food ingredients with both pet food and juice concentrates and sea and air freight logistics.

Graduating from Lincoln College in 1986 with a Bachelor of Agriculture Commerce (Valuation and Farm Management), Andy joined the Rural Bank where he spent four years and then had 17 years at Westpac, finishing in the role of Head of Corporate and Property Finance for New Zealand.

He moved to Scales Corporation Limited in 2007 as CEO and became Managing Director in 2011. Andy has overall responsibility for the strategic direction and day-to-day management of Scales.

In addition to his directorships within the Scales Group, Andy is the Chairman of Akaroa Salmon Limited, Primary Collaboration New Zealand Limited, Primary Collaboration New Zealand (Shanghai) Co Limited and Rabobank New Zealand Limited.

He has maintained a strong relationship with Lincoln and is a member of the Lincoln University Foundation and a guest speaker at alumni events.

Andy leads a company that makes a significant contribution to the economy. His other involvements are also significant within the primary sector and rural banking.

Andy Borland is a worthy recipient of the Honorary Doctorate in Commerce.
